Every 7 minutes, someone in the U.S. is diagnosed with lymphoma.

There are more than 700,000 people in the U.S. living with lymphoma.

Each year, more than 80,000 people in the U.S. receive a lymphoma diagnosis.
Dear Friends,

The Lymphoma Research Foundation’s mission to eradicate lymphoma and serve those touched by this disease drives every aspect of our work. LRF employs an evidence-based and patient-focused approach to all of its programs, which has enabled us to be at the forefront of innovative research and exceptional patient education.

One of the unique focus areas of the Lymphoma Research Foundation’s research program is our commitment to young investigators. We are dedicated to ensuring that the best and brightest science minds focus their careers on the study of lymphoma. With only one in 10 federal research grants funded by the government each year, LRF’s cultivation of young scientists is not only incredibly important but hugely impactful. By fostering the next generation of lymphoma researchers, we are able to make an impact on the future now.

As the lymphoma treatment landscape continues to evolve, LRF continues to create innovative ways to bring the latest information to those who need it most. From convening key thought leaders on emerging therapies in lymphoma to our award-winning mobile app, the Lymphoma Research Foundation has much to be proud of from this past year.

LRF hosted the first-of-its-kind workshop on Oral Therapies in Lymphoma, setting an agenda for further investigation and investment into these treatment modalities. Additionally, we hosted a scientific workshop on Immunotherapy Response Criteria where leading clinicians, scientists, federal regulators and pharmaceutical companies discussed how standard treatment response criteria could be adjusted to better account for flare phenomenon in patients. Workshops like these provide a forum for key stakeholders to discuss the most important topics surrounding treatment options so that we can improve care and outcomes for all lymphoma patients.

2015 also marked the 20th Anniversary of two of the Lymphoma Research Foundation’s mission-critical events – the North American Educational Forum on Lymphoma and our Annual Gala. We were proud to have all of LRF’s previous Scientific Advisory Board Chairs serve as honorary co-chairs for this national educational program, which provided a unique opportunity for attendees to learn from the world’s leading lymphoma experts. We are also proud to say that this year’s 20th Anniversary Gala raised more than $1 million for the LRF mission. Events like these epitomize the LRF’s dual mission in action.

The Lymphoma Research Foundation is able to remain at the forefront of patient education and unique research initiatives through the support of our generous donors, volunteers and partners. Thanks to your commitment to our shared mission, we continue to find new ways to ensure that patients, caregivers, healthcare providers and researchers have the tools needed to improve the future for all those affected by this blood cancer. With more than 80,000 people diagnosed with lymphoma each year, it is critical that we remain at the forefront of research and education until we can completely eradicate lymphoma.

Sincerely,

Steven J. Prince

“THE CLINICAL SCIENTISTS THAT THE LYMPHOMA RESEARCH FOUNDATION FUNDS ARE ADDRESSING THE MOST EXCITING RESEARCH AREAS THAT OUR LYMPHOMA COMMUNITY FACES. THE CONTINUED COMMITMENT OF THE LRF TO THE BRIGHTEST YOUNG MINDS IN THE FIELD IS CLEARLY DEMONSTRATED BY THE LYMPHOMA CLINICAL RESEARCH MENTORING PROGRAM. WE ARE CONFIDENT THAT THE INNOVATIONS THAT COME FROM THESE INVESTIGATORS WILL HAVE A TREMENDOUS IMPACT ON ADVANCING THE CARE AND IMPROVING SURVIVAL FOR POPULATIONS OF CANCER PATIENTS IN THE YEARS TO COME.”

THE FOREFRONT OF RESEARCH

During this time of great promise, the Lymphoma Research Foundation is proud to be at the forefront of advancing lymphoma research.

This is an exciting time in the field of lymphoma research. There have never been more treatment options and better outcomes for patients than there are right now. Researchers continually improve our understanding of the basic biology of the disease and develop new combinations and therapies to more effectively treat the many subtypes of lymphoma while reducing toxicities.

During this time of great promise, the Lymphoma Research Foundation is proud to be at the forefront of advancing lymphoma research. With $11 million invested in over 55 active research grants in 2015 and more than $56 million in lymphoma-specific research grants awarded to date, LRF provides millions of dollars each year to combat lymphoma and improve the lives of those affected by a lymphoma diagnosis.

The Lymphoma Research Foundation is also uniquely devoted to ensuring that the best and the brightest young investigators remain dedicated to the field of lymphoma. Whether through our Career Development Awards or Postdoctoral Fellowships, LRF is committed to cultivating the next generation of lymphoma researchers; investigators who are working on identifying therapies for high-risk patients and those who do not have many treatment options currently available. Their research is laying the groundwork for the development of novel therapies that seek to decrease toxicity, while increasing cure rates.

Our commitment to advancing the forward edge of research may be best illustrated through LRF’s renowned Lymphoma Clinical Research Mentoring Program. Through this comprehensive program, participants—called LRF Scholars—are paired with established experts in the field to learn how to successfully design and administer clinical research studies with the ultimate goal of securing future grant funding. Members of the Lymphoma research Foundation’s Scientific Advisory Board, which is comprised of 45 of the world’s leaders in lymphoma, serve as mentors for this intensive week-long program. Members of LRF’s inaugural class have already gone on to secure funding from the Lymphoma Research Foundation and all have focused their careers on this important research. The Clinical Research Mentoring Program is indicative of LRF’s commitment to tomorrow’s scientific leaders, and through programs such as these, we are working to ensure a future free of lymphoma.

LRF had 55 active lymphoma research grants in 2015.

10 of 17 LRF Young Investigator Grants focused on novel therapies in 2015.

LRF invested nearly $1.4 million in young investigators, including LRF Scholars, in 2015.
“WITH THE EXCITING ADVANCEMENTS IN IMMUNOTHERAPY, IT’S CRITICAL THAT WE ARE ABLE TO COME TOGETHER AT WORKSHOPS SUCH AS THOSE ORGANIZED BY THE LYMPHOMA RESEARCH FOUNDATION IN ORDER TO DEVELOP NEW TREATMENT STRATEGIES THAT WILL BENEFIT ALL PATIENTS, SO THAT WE CAN MOVE TOWARD A CHEMOTHERAPY-FREE FUTURE.”

In addition to funding innovative lymphoma research and supporting the next generation of researchers, LRF is also in the unique position to serve as a convener and thought leader at the forefront of the ever-shifting treatment landscape, as exemplified by the numerous workshops and symposiums held this past year.

In the fall of 2015, LRF held the first-of-its-kind meeting to discuss issues surrounding Oral Therapies in Lymphoma, chaired by Jonathan W. Friedberg, MD, MMSc, James P. Wilmot Cancer Institute, University of Rochester and Michael E. Williams, MD, ScM, University of Virginia Cancer Center. LRF convened scientists, clinicians, patients, advocates, pharmaceutical industry representatives and federal lawmakers and regulators to discuss and identify specific challenges facing the scientific and patient communities related to the development, optimization, treatment, adherence and access to lymphoma oral therapies. The meeting set important action items for further investigation and investment, including improvements to patient education and resources, as well as the identification of alternative endpoints for clinical trials that reflect the therapeutic goals of individual patients.

Later that fall, the LRF also partnered with the Cancer Immunotherapy Consortium of the Cancer Research Institute to hold a timely Immunotherapy Response Criteria for Hematologic Malignancies Workshop in Washington, DC. This Workshop, chaired by Bruce Cheson, MD, FACP, FAAAS of the Lombardi Cancer Center at Georgetown University and Past LRF Scientific Advisory Board Chair, provided a critical forum for leading clinicians, scientists, federal regulators and pharmaceutical researchers to discuss immune checkpoint inhibitors and address issues of patient response in this promising class of therapies. Specifically, participants addressed the flare phenomenon that is common with immunotherapies and discussed how standard treatment response criteria could be adjusted to better account for this reaction in blood cancers.

Chaired by Kieron M. Dunleavy, MD, National Cancer Institute, Kara Kelly, MD, Roswell Park Cancer Institute, University of Buffalo, Ann S. LaCasce, MD, MSc, Harvard Medical School, Dana-Farber Cancer Institute, the Adolescent and Young Adult Lymphomas: Biologic, Therapeutic and Psychosocial Considerations symposium was a pivotal symposium that brought together pediatric and adult oncologists to discuss common treatment strategies and identify priority areas for future research to benefit this traditionally underserved patient population.

Through programs like these, LRF demonstrated its organizational commitment to advancing the research agenda for the lymphoma community by leading the charge around the most promising scientific exploration and patient care initiatives on the forefront of today’s research landscape.
“THE PROFESSIONAL EDUCATION PROGRAMS CONDUCTED BY LRF SET THE BENCHMARK FOR INNOVATION AND EXCELLENCE, AS THEY CONTINUE TO PROVIDE MY COLLEAGUES AND I ACROSS NORTH AMERICA WITH INTERACTIVE AND HIGHLY COLLABORATIVE FORUMS TO PRESENT MULTIDISCIPLINARY LYMPHOMA CASE STUDIES, WHICH FACILITATE THE ANALYSIS OF EXISTING AND EMERGING SCIENTIFIC DATA AND ARE CONDUCTED WITH THE OVERARCHING GOAL OF IMPROVING PATIENT OUTCOMES.”

Since its inception, the Lymphoma Research Foundation has placed the utmost value on the power of collaboration. With that philosophy in mind, LRF has established the premier platform for the definitive discourse around lymphoma research and patient care, as embodied by its highly successful professional education programs.

Lymphoma Rounds, LRF’s renowned professional education series, provides a collaborative forum for healthcare professionals to discuss lymphoma cases in an effort to increase their knowledge and skills in order to ultimately improve the quality of care for all lymphoma patients. In 2015, Lymphoma Rounds programs were held in six cities across the country and garnered participation from more than 35 academic centers. Healthcare professionals from academic institutions and community centers participated in this collaborative and interactive program, resulting in a nearly 15 percent increase of attendees this past year. Studies were presented on some of the most challenging cases seen by healthcare providers in academic centers and community hospitals across the country.

In 2015, LRF also published its first-ever Frontline publication, featuring select presentations from Lymphoma Rounds programs. This professional publication enables healthcare providers who are unable to attend a Lymphoma Rounds program to benefit from the extensive dialogue and case studies that are presented at the live meetings in order to better understand how to treat and care for their lymphoma patients.

As the Lymphoma Research Foundation continues to expand its impact in professional education through its in-person events and research-focused publications, LRF aims to set the standard for patient care by establishing new frontiers in medical learning opportunities, for the benefit of both patients and their caregivers.
“TODAY’S MEDICINE ALLOWS SOME CANCER PATIENTS THE OPPORTUNITY TO TAKE CHEMOTHERAPY IN THE FORM OF A PILL AT HOME RATHER THAN THROUGH AN IV IN THE HOSPITAL; YET UNDER THE EXISTING BROKEN SYSTEM, IN SOME CASES IT IS MORE COSTLY TO FILL THE PRESCRIPTION THAN SPEND HOURS IN A MEDICAL FACILITY UNDER HEALTH CARE SUPERVISION. THE CANCER DRUG COVERAGE PARITY ACT LEVELS THE CANCER DRUG PLAYING FIELD SO PATIENTS CAN FOCUS ON FIGHTING CANCER, NOT FIGHTING FOR COVERAGE ON LIFE-SAVING MEDICATION.”

—Rep. Brian Higgins (NY-26)

It is critical for federal policies to keep pace with the ever shifting treatment landscape for lymphoma. With only one in every 10 grants receiving federal funding, the Lymphoma Research Foundation seeks to fill the gaps through its research programs, as well as through its public policy and advocacy initiatives. As federal investment in cancer research continues to decrease, the role of patient advocacy efforts becomes increasingly important in our efforts to eradicate lymphoma.

With a network of more than 5,000 advocates, LRF’s public policy and advocacy program ensures that the voice of the lymphoma community is heard by advocating for legislative and budgetary measures that increase federal funding for lymphoma research and enable access to quality cancer care for all those affected by this blood cancer.

The Lymphoma Research Foundation is committed to ensuring a research-friendly policy environment, not only for the researchers that we support, but ultimately for the benefit of the patients and caregivers as well. LRF’s Public Policy and Advocacy efforts help to ensure the patient perspective is included in regulatory and policy issues affecting today’s cancer patients, their caregivers, and their loved ones, including the debate around the Cancer Drug Coverage Parity Act of 2015 H.R. 2739/S. 1566.

The bill amends the current Public Health Service Act to require a group or individual health plan that covers anticancer medications administered by a health care provider to provide equitable coverage for anticancer medications administered by a patient, reducing the potential for out-of-pocket costs to the patients served by the Lymphoma Research Foundation. With our core constituencies always at the top of mind, our Public Policy and Advocacy efforts throughout 2015 focused on establishing both a cooperative framework with federal and regulatory partners, and an industry consensus around some of the most critical areas to modern cancer care.

This year, LRF furthered its work in ensuring a supportive legislative climate as a member of the steering committee of the Patient Equal Access Coalition (PEAC). PEAC is a patient-focused coalition of organizations representing patients, health care professionals, care centers, and industry collaboratively joined together to ensure that cancer patients have equality of access and equality of insurance coverage to all approved anticancer regimens. At this critical time for research funding, the Lymphoma Research Foundation’s role as a leader in public policy and advocacy continues to ensure that the voice of the lymphoma community is heard by lawmakers.
“THE KNOWLEDGE I’VE GAINED FROM WORKING WITH LRF HAS BEEN INVALUABLE IN MY ABILITY TO HELP MY FAMILY ALONG IN OUR CANCER JOURNEY. TODAY, I’M THRILLED TO HAVE THE OPPORTUNITY TO GIVE BACK AS AN LRF AMBASSADOR, HELPING CAREGIVERS ACROSS THE COUNTRY UNDERSTAND THAT THE EDUCATION RESOURCES PROVIDED BY THE LYMPHOMA RESEARCH FOUNDATION ARE CRITICAL TO BOTH PATIENTS AND THEIR LOVED ONES.”

—Susan Poll Klaessy

At the core of the Lymphoma Research Foundation’s mission of eradicating lymphoma and serving those touched by the disease is our commitment to empowering patients with the knowledge they need to make informed decisions about their care. Just as the Lymphoma Research Foundation has been at the forefront of critical research and treatment topics, LRF has also led the way toward improved standards of education and patient support. In this era of ever-evolving treatment paradigms, the need to provide accurate and current information to patients and caregivers is even more critical.

To ensure that patients have access to educational resources in whatever format they may learn best, the Lymphoma Research Foundation provides a variety of educational opportunities, including in-person education programs, booklets and fact sheets, teleconferences, webcasts/podcasts, websites, eCommunications, videos and a mobile app. Last year, more than 75,000 people were served by LRF patient programs and services, while nearly 1.1 million users accessed LRF’s online resources over the course of 2015.

In-person education programs continue to be one of the hallmarks of the Lymphoma Research Foundation, providing both an exceptional learning opportunity and a chance for patients and their loved ones to learn from lymphoma experts and network with patients going through a similar lymphoma experience. In 2015, LRF celebrated its 20th Annual North American Educational Forum on Lymphoma. LRF welcomed nearly 400 patients and caregivers to Brooklyn, New York to learn from the world’s leading experts, as they presented the latest developments in lymphoma treatment options and research. All of the Lymphoma Research Foundation’s past chairs of its prestigious Scientific Advisory Board served as honorary co-chairs of the program, including Joseph R. Bertino, MD – Rutgers Cancer Institute of New Jersey; Bruce D. Cheson, MD, FACP, FAAAS – Georgetown University Hospital, Lombardi Comprehensive Cancer Center; Richard I. Fisher, MD – Fox Chase Cancer Center, Temple University School of Medicine; Leo I. Gordon, MD, FACP – Robert H. Lurie Comprehensive Cancer Center of Northwestern University; John P. Leonard, MD – New York Presbyterian Hospital, Weill Cornell Medical Center; and Oliver Press, MD, PhD – Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center, University of Washington Medical Center. The Educational Forum also featured symposia on cutting edge topics such as oral therapies, adolescent and young adult lymphoma and maintenance therapy, all of which attendees found incredibly informative.

For its efforts in finding innovative ways to deliver the most accurate data available, the Lymphoma Research Foundation was awarded the PR News Social Media Icon Award for Best Mobile App of 2015, an award representative of the inventive approach to patient care that has made LRF synonymous with excellence in patient empowerment. With more than 17,769 total downloads through 2015, the Focus on Lymphoma App has already led to major differences in the way patients and caregivers are able to manage their disease, through tools to track and report symptoms, set reminders to take any medications and oral therapies to ensure adherence, and record their meetings with their doctors in order to gain a better understanding of their treatment options.

With an increased emphasis on patient empowerment through reinforced ongoing education, this year alone, nearly 350 people joined the Lymphoma Support Network (LSN), LRF’s one-to-one peer program, highlighting the value of personal connections and shared experiences. The Lymphoma Support Network connects patients and caregivers with volunteers that have experience with the same type of lymphoma, treatments, or challenges, for mutual emotional support and encouragement. By leveraging fully integrated approaches to our patient education, outreach and support, the Lymphoma Research Foundation seeks to empower patients with the information they need to be their own health advocates.

Awareness is a vital tool in our efforts to eradicate lymphoma, as the more people who know about the disease, the more people there are who are able to change the future for those affected by this blood cancer. With more than 700,000 people currently living with or in remission from lymphoma, the Lymphoma Research Foundation continues to improve, expand and create innovative ways to raise awareness about the disease as a critical part of our mission.

In an effort to place the latest disease information at the fingertips of more people than ever before, the Lymphoma Research Foundation expanded its awareness initiatives in 2015. In doing so, LRF continued to cultivate a base of core constituents who are not only invested in LRF’s mission, but are both motivated and empowered to take a more active role in their health and take action to change the future for all those affected by a lymphoma diagnosis. Additionally, the Lymphoma Research Foundation sought to increase its national and international footprint through new and expanded awareness campaigns, including an expanded Twitter Chat format, which received more than 1.3 million impressions in just one hour; a national partnership with Dragon Con, an internationally known pop culture convention held each Labor Day in Atlanta, which brought in over $92,000 for LRF and its mission; and a #GivingTuesday campaign that included a 17 percent increase in the average donation amount compared to the year prior.

The Lymphoma Research Foundation remains the leader in raising public awareness about lymphoma both during Blood Cancer Awareness Month (September) and throughout the year. This year, LRF celebrated its most successful Blood Cancer Awareness Month campaign to date. Our nationally recognized Light it Red for Lymphoma campaign included 60 major landmarks around the country and overseas lighting their façades in honor of World Lymphoma Awareness Day.

For the first-time, LRF also expanded its partnerships to include cause-marketing support for Light it Red for Lymphoma, as well. Southern Wine and Spirits of America, Inc., along with the Kroger Company, Deutsch Family Wine & Spirits, and Trinchero Family Estates launched a pilot program in Kroger stores throughout Michigan, Indiana, Wisconsin and Ohio in the month of September, during which time $0.50 for every bottle of Sutter Home and [yellow tail] wines was donated to LRF, totaling nearly $25,000 for the Lymphoma Research Foundation and our mission. In 2015, LRF aimed to combine these innovative cause marketing partnerships into its already robust portfolio of established fundraising initiatives, including this year’s 20th Anniversary Gala that raised over $1.1 million.

Understanding that awareness and convenient access to timely information is a critical component of serving those touched by the disease, LRF further established itself as the preeminent organization serving today’s lymphoma community by continually expanding our organizational touch-points, in the hopes of not only increasing the national level of awareness of this disease, but just as importantly, the hope for a cure.

“TEN YEARS AGO, A SMALL GROUP OF PATIENTS, CAREGIVERS, CORPORATE PARTNERS AND THE TEAM AT THE LYMPHOMA RESEARCH FOUNDATION MET AT OUR DINNER TABLE TO SEE IF WE COULD PUT TOGETHER A BICYCLE RIDE. WHO WOULD HAVE DREAMED THAT 10 YEARS LATER WE WOULD HAVE HAD THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE INVOLVED, AND RAISED MORE THAN $4 MILLION TOWARDS THE CURE OF LYMPHOMA AND CLL?”

—Christine Cheson
Founding Member, Lymphoma Research Ride Committee
